PIP MORRISON

Previously in business with Mary Keen, Pip now works solo, with projects both private and public round the UK. He is also developing his own garden in Hampshire with partner Kim Wilkie. WHAT HE DOES BEST The large-scale landscapes of historic houses, where he can peel back the layers and provide highly tuned planting schemes that are sensitive to each location. WHAT'S NEW? A garden for Maggie's Oxford and a two-acre walled garden at Auckland Castle in County Durham. ROBERT MYERS

Running his busy landscape practice from offices in Cambridge and Worcestershire, Robert works on some 30 projects at a time – juggling private gardens with high-profile public work. WHAT HE DOES BEST Elegant, contemporary gardens, often in culturally or historically significant settings. WHAT'S NEW? Robert is designing the Florence Nightingale Garden at the 2021 RHS Chelsea Flower Show. He is also working on the restoration of Clandon Park House for the National Trust. // robertmyers-associates.co.uk

RUPERT GOLBY

Based in the Cotswolds, Rupert designs private gardens for clients around the country. He trained at RHS Wisley and Royal Botanic Gardens Kew, and with the late Rosemary Verey. WHAT HE DOES BEST Beautifully planted gardens in traditional settings, often reworking old gardens within their existing framework, imposing the lightest of touches on the landscape. WHAT'S NEW? A garden for the opera house at Nevill Holt in Leicestershire. SARA JANE ROTHWELL

Sara Jane Rothwell established London Garden Designer in 2003, creating private gardens ranging from tiny roof terraces to lush, green family spaces. WHAT SHE DOES BEST Completely experienced in dealing with awkward London plots, she relishes each site's challenges, from slopes to deep shade. DESIGN ETHOS 'We want our clients to engage with their garden and enjoy what we have created for them,' says Sara Jane. SEAN WALTER

Known as co-founder of the successful Buckinghamshire nursery The Plant Specialist, Sean also designs private gardens round the UK. WHAT HE DOES BEST Sean's work is primarily plant-led, fuelled by his vast knowledge and access to plants that he knows work well in each garden setting. DESIGN ETHOS 'My design principle is that a garden is a space for plants: structural ones provide a framework, softened by herbaceous perennials and grasses.' SARAH PRICE

With a training in fine art, Sarah (below) is particularly well known for her exquisite planting at the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, E20, for the 2012 Olympics. Based in Monmouthshire, she designs gardens that reflect her life-long love of nature. WHAT SHE DOES BEST Painterly, plant-filled landscapes with a light, instinctive touch that beautifully bridges the gap between wild and cultivated. WHAT'S NEW? Therapeutic gardens are central to Sarah's work – her garden at Maggie's Southampton has recently been completed and she is creating a Horatio's Garden in Cardiff, which is due to open in 2021. LATEST DISCOVERY 'Osti copper trowels are beautiful, with strong sharp edges that make them effortless to use' ('Nada', €39.90; ostijarej.com).
